About our Keynote Speaker—Rev. Irene Monroe

Monroe is a Huffington Post blogger, syndicated religion columnist, and radio commentator. Her columns appear in 23 cities across the country, in the U.K, and Canada. And she writes a weekly column in the Boston home LGBTQ newspaper “Baywindows.”

Monroe states that her "columns are an interdisciplinary approach drawing on critical race theory, African American, queer and religious studies. As an religion columnist I try to inform the public of the role religion plays in discrimination against lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer people. Because homophobia is both a hatred of the ‘other’ and it’s usually acted upon ‘in the name of religion,’ by reporting religion in the news I aim to highlight how religious intolerance and fundamentalism not only shatters the goal of American democracy, but also aids in perpetuating other forms of oppression such as racism, sexism, classism and anti-Semitism."

Monroe also does a weekly Monday segment called ‘All Rev’d Up’ on WGBH, a Boston member station of National Public Radio (NPR).

When inviting Monroe to speak, The United Nations International School at the UN wrote, "Rev. Monroe, your active role in the fight against homophobia and your written activism for human rights has truly made an impact on this world, as well as your theories on religion and homosexuality in the U.S."

Monroe is a founder and now member emeritus of the National Black Justice Coalition (NBJC). She is also one of the founders of Equal Partners of Faith, the Religious Coalition for the Freedom to Marry (RCFM), and Christian Lesbians Out (CLOUT).

Monroe was chosen in October 2009 by MSNBC as "10 Black women you should know." Monroe has been profiled in "O, Oprah Magazine.” She was also profiled in the Gay Pride Episode of “In the Life TV” where the segment on her was nominated for an educational Emmy.

A native of Brooklyn, NY, Monroe graduated from Wellesley College and Union Theological Seminary at Columbia University and served as a pastor of an African-American church in New Jersey before coming to Harvard Divinity School to do her doctorate. She has received the Harvard University Certificate of Distinction in Teaching several times. She is in the film, “For the Bible Tells me so,” an exploration of the intersection between religion and homosexuality in the U.S. and how the religious right has used its interpretation of the Bible to stigmatize the gay community. Her coming out story is profiled in "CRISIS: 40 Stories Revealing the Personal, Social, and Religious Pain and Trauma of Growing up Gay in America" and in "Youth in Crisis." In 1997 Boston Magazine cited her as one of Boston's 50 Most Intriguing Women, and she was profiled twice in the Living Arts and Spiritual Life sections of the Boston Globe for her LGBT activism.

Jonathan Lincoln, Dean of the College of Science & Technology

9:30 - 10:30 a.m. — Session 1

We are Powerful: Activating LGBTQ Youth-Led Advocacy  Session 1A — McCormick Center 1316
Youth-led organizing is increasingly found on the front lines of advocacy for LGBTQ equality. This session will work through the opportunities and challenges that young activists encounter in the modern LGBTQ justice movement. After reviewing youth organizing models, participants will discuss the development of youth-led efforts within their school communities. The workshop will help student leaders learn practical tools to support youth-led advocacy through providing modern applications which rely on historical, practical, and intellectual frameworks. Those who attend this session will learn how to best activate authentic, sustainable, and effective youth-led advocacy work in movement toward LGBTQ justice.
Turner Stulting, Convener, The Pennsylvania Student Equality Coalition, convener@pennsec.org;
Jason Landau Goodman, Executive Director, The Pennsylvania Student Equality Coalition

Taking the Bash Out of the Bible  Session 1B — McCormick Center 2303
More and more, LGBTQ folks are finding it interesting and useful to be more informed about queer sexuality and genderqueer identity in the biblical canon, whether to defend ourselves from homophobic "Christianity" or simply to understand more about our place within tradition and our biblical forebears. This workshop will provide an overview of biblical scholarship and provide a basic understanding of what the bible "really says" about us, including many exemplary characters who are our queer and trans biblical ancestors. Hoffman draws on the work of Horner, Helminiak, Boswell, and others.
Rev. Miller Hoffman, Senior Pastor of Open Door Metropolitan Community Church, Boyds, MD, revmillerjen@gmail.com
10:45 - 11:45 a.m. — Session 2

Creating a Climate of Assessment for Change: You and Your Own LGBTQA Campus Climate Assessment

Session 2A — McCormick Center 1316

Sometimes the thought of assessment can intimidating, even more so when campus resources are limited. This session is designed for institutions in the beginning process of developing and implementing an LGBTQA Campus Climate Assessment. This session offers a basic overview of how to assess campus climate with minimal resources. Having practical data can be beneficial when working towards increasing resources to better the climate. The emphasis of the session will be upon practical advice and experience. Participants will have the opportunity to discuss individual campus challenges.

Rick W. Schulze, D.Ed., MCHES, Professor, Health Science;
Chairperson, President's Commission on LGBTQ Affairs, Lock Haven University, fschulze@lhup.edu

Gayatri Devi, Ph.D., Associate Professor, English, Member, Assessment Committee, President's Commission on LGBTQ Affairs

Religious Exemptions to Legal Requirements: Understanding the Hobby Lobby Decision

Session 2B — McCormick Center 2303

This session will discuss the Supreme Court's recent holding in the Hobby Lobby case, and the disturbing implications of the court's decision for anti-discrimination laws that protect the LGBT community. The talk will look at the legal ramifications of the decision in a way that will be understandable to those without formal legal training. I will explain the decision and its possible implications.

Does This Haircut Make Me Look Like A Lesbian? The Body Politics of Hair and Sexuality

Session 2C — McCormick Center 2314

This session looks at the ways in which gender stereotypes can perpetuate discriminatory beliefs about a person’s sexuality based on their looks, specifically female hair length. The presentation is based off of several qualitative interviews among women who have experienced both positive and negative treatment based on the length of their hair and what assumptions have been made about their sexuality as a result.

Noon - 1:00 p.m.

Lunch — Kehr Union, Multipurpose Room 345

1:15 - 2:15 p.m.

Interactive Workshop — Centennial Hall Gymnasium

Bounce!

This workshop will be about collaboration, communication, interacting, and most importantly having fun with as many people as you can in attendance at the conference. Many times a conference doesn’t have time set aside for meeting other people in attendance but this is that opportunity. The activities will be led by the Quest team at Bloomsburg University whose focus is experiential programming with clients of all ages, sizes, and abilities. You will be tasked to discuss and solve problems with rapidly changing teams during this fast-paced activity session.

Brett Simpson, Executive Director, Bloomsburg University Quest
2:30 - 3:30 p.m.

Debunking the Myth: The Hierarchies of Oppression

How can we improve campus climates? Many of us experience microaggressions in our work world but we aren’t sure how to respond. Perhaps we can begin by thinking about what it means to experience oppression. The hierarchy of oppression is the false belief that one oppression - and it’s usually the one a person identifies with - is greater than other oppressions. This talk works toward the goal of community by examining the intersection of race, gender, class, religion and sexuality, and how they impact identity, identification, and community building on college campuses.

3:45 - 4:45 p.m. — Session 3

Where do I start?: Reconciling my Faith and Identity...

Do you feel your spiritual side gets short shrift because you’re LGBTQ? Join me for this interactive workshop where you can learn how to start finding the balance. No matter which religion you are, you can get useful information and practical resources to support your spiritual walk. Participants can share stories, ask questions or simply listen to like minded people all struggling with some of the same issues. Learn how to not settle for mere tolerance; but to be a catalyst for love and acceptance. This is an interactive workshop so you have to feel comfortable with self-evaluation and minimal sharing.

Sexuality & Spirituality: What Could a Campus Conversation Look Like?

The University of Richmond’s Office of the Chaplaincy and Office of Common Ground, the University’s diversity initiative, worked together during the 2013-2014 academic year to engage students struggling with questions of faith and sexuality in conversation. They intentionally crafted programs that worked across lines of difference in order to help students critically examine their own beliefs, the beliefs of others, and to derive meaning from the experience. Molly Field, Community Engagement Program Manager and Ted Lewis, Associate Director for LGBTQ Campus Life, share about their selection of “The Laramie Project” as the University’s common reading and what partnerships and learning emerged.

Modern Masculinity: Male Body Image & Media

The male body is being increasingly commercialized and commented on. This is a relatively new phenomenon and its effect has been drastic: increased eating disorders, body dysmorphia, depression, etc. Gay and bisexual males are doubly effected as both consumers and targets of this media trend. The focus should be more on healthy, sustainable, and realistic bodies than living up to idealized images.

Matthew Barcus, Coordinator of LGBTQA Student Services, Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania, mbarcus@bloomu.edu
John Matulevich, Undergraduate Student, Bloomsburg University; Freelance Fitness Writer and Personal Trainer
4:45 - 5:45 p.m.

Conference attendees are invited to offer their thoughts and opinions during this interactive conversation. Topics will be participant driven and might range from discussions about issues with which individuals or campuses are coping, questions about current and future programs, or responses to sessions attended at the conference. The floor will be open for discussion and moderated by members of the BU LGBTQA Commission. Winners of Kindle Fire drawing will be announced, see below for details!

5:45 - 6:00 p.m.

Closing Remarks
Matthew Barcus, Coordinator of LGBTQA Student Services, Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania, mbarcus@bloomu.edu

WANTED!!

MEN WHO ARE ATTRACTED TO MEN - 1 in 15 Chance to win a Kindle Fire!

TO COMPLETE RESEARCH SURVEY, just pick up a survey from Dr. Massey, Kris Hawkins, Melanie Seymour, or Sarah Habraken (wearing Rainbow Tye Dye t-shirts). You must be between the ages of 18 and 40. After completing the survey (maybe during breaks and lunch), turn in to one of the persons mentioned above. At that time you will be given a slip to fill out for the Kindle Fire drawing. Please turn in the survey and entry before 3:45pm, the drawing will be held at 5pm.

Additional Study Information:

This study involves anonymously answering questions in a survey by marking appropriate choices and adding text as needed. You will be asked to provide information about yourself, your personality, and history/experiences with friends and romantic partners. It is expected to take approximately 30 minutes for you to complete the study. You may skip a question if you do not wish to answer. If at any time during the study you wish to withdraw and not complete the study, you may stop/withdraw at any time.

This research is from a funded grant by the College of Health, Environment, and Science and is being conducted by Drs. Catherine Massey, Jennifer Sanftner McGraw, and Emily Keener in the department of psychology at Slippery Rock University. It is approved through the Slippery Rock University IRB (PRIDE Study 2013-034-70-B).

Thank you for your time,
